

Sochi 2014: Russian Police Choir covers Daft Punk's 'Get Lucky'

The Winter Olympics kicked off last night during a psychedelic opening ceremony with some surprise performances

Read more on Daft Punk

Listen to Daft Punk on Spotify

 Tweet 2

 Share 0

 Submit

Basculer

POSTED 8TH FEBRUARY 2014 IN NEWS, DAFT PUNK | BY CLICKMUSIC NEWS DESK

The Sochi Winter Olympics began last night with a psychedelic display of nationalism in Fisht Stadium, but it was the Russian Police Choir that captured the audience's attention by performing a cover of Daft Punk's 'Get Lucky' during the opening ceremony.

The video was uploaded to YouTube late yesterday evening and went on to gather over a million views on the site. It has since been taken down for unknown reasons, but other users have uploaded blurry recordings of the performance.

The RPC made headlines last year when their Daft Punk cover went viral and caught the attention of over 4 million people on YouTube.