

Russian police choir performs Daft Punk rendition at opening ceremony

Saturday - 2/8/2014, 8:26am ET

WASHINGTON -- The Russian police choir, officially the Russian Ministry of Internal Affairs Choir, sang a rendition of Daft Punk's 'Get Lucky' before Friday's opening ceremony of the 2014 Winter Olympics in Sochi, Russia.

The majority of the all-male choir took a more stoic approach to the song, but a pair of jovial front men channeled their inner Pharrell Williams with some unforgettable dance moves.

You can watch the performance and others from the opening ceremony on the NBC Olympics site.