Russian police choir covers Daft Punk's 'Get Lucky', wins Sochi Olympics [VIDEO]

We were so focused on pointing out all the fails we spotted during the Sochi Olympics' opening ceremony on Friday that we totally forgot to talk about the Russian police choir's breath-taking performance.

Dressed in their shmancy uniforms, the police officers went all out and brought it home with a seriously wicked cover of what was arguably 2013's hottest song - Daft Punk's 'Get Lucky'.

Just look at the sheer joy on their faces and check out those impeccable dance moves - everything about these guys is impressive. We haven't seen a rendition this good since we last took part in drunken karaoke... but that's a whole other story.

We promise there's no better way to start your week on a high note, so watch the choir in action now!
