

Olympics

The Russian Police Choir Sang "Sex Bomb" By Tom Jones

By Ryan Glasspiegel February 10, 2014 1:45 pm ETjennifer_k_long

Instagram

♥ 30 likes 💬 8 comments

After establishing themselves as global icons during their performance of Daft Punk's "Get Lucky" at the opening ceremony for the Sochi Olympics, the Russian police choir appeared on the Today show this morning and cappella'ed Tom Jones' sex bomb.

They were also asked by Meredith Viera if they knew what the lyrics in "Get Lucky" meant, and responded that they were aware that it was slang and that their general had forbidden that form of luck while they're in Sochi. They need to book a world tour ASAP.

RELATED: Kate Hansen, American Luger, Has the Best Warmup Dance Routine of the Olympics

RELATED: Johnny Quinn and Other US Olympic Bobsledders Are Stuck in a Sochi Elevator

RELATED: Indian Luger Shiva Keshavan Makes an Incredible Recovery During Crash While Moving 70 mph